Please let your fellow Board, Commission and Council members know that all Newport County municipal officials, board and commission members are eligible to take part in this event.

This workshop session presents a practical, easy-to-use technique that enables developers and local officials to work together to accomplish their different objectives, namely the construction of full-density residential subdivisions in such a way that helps to build a community-wide network of permanent conservation land.

This program is extensively illustrated with numerous financially successful examples of "conservation subdivision design", together with a straight-forward four-step methodology of laying out residential developments around the central organizing principle of open space conservation.

Presenter: Randall Arendt, FRTPI, ASLA, is a landscape planner, site designer, author, lecturer, and an advocate of "conservation planning". Mr. Arendt is the country's most sought-after speaker on the topic of creative development design as a conservation tool. He has presented slide lectures in 46 states, six Canadian provinces, and in Europe (most recently in Switzerland). Mr. Arendt is the author of several notable books, including Rural By Design and Growing Greener.
